

Amastatr Innovation Haus · The Lexicon

Academic Writings

Scholarship and inquiry, in chronological order

A READING DOSSIER · ACADEMIC WRITING
RAFAEL MENDOZA FARÍAS
MCALLEN / AUSTIN, TEXAS · MMXXVI
1 PIECE · FEBRUARY 2026

§ SECTION I

Philosophy

Arguments made carefully, with their premises on the page. Where a claim is staked, it is staked plainly.

On Time and Entropy

Philosophy · February 10, 2026

This is a sample academic piece – replace it with your own scholarship. The book reads any Markdown file dropped into a section folder and lays it out in the Haus style, in chronological order.

Time is the human thought failing to understand the unfolding universe at once.

A pull quote, set off from the body, renders as primary text – the way the reference dossier treats its quotations. Use > at the start of a line to mark one.

A subsection

Academic prose is justified and set in Newsreader, the text serif. Headings within a piece are set in Fraunces. Citations and labels are set in JetBrains Mono. The three faces do the same work here that they do in the source document.

Footnote-style references, dates, and source lines can sit in the body for now; once writings are connected to the Lexicon, their provenance can be pulled in automatically.

