

§ THE ACADEMIC CORPUS · A RECORD OF STUDY

The Curriculum.

A chronological record of coursework, and the writing it produced

Rafael Mendoza-Farias Jr. · English · UTRGV → The University of Texas at Austin

This is the academic corpus, kept the way The Quarry keeps the personal writing. It reads as the transcript reads, every course in the order it was taken, from the Rio Grande Valley to Austin. Beneath each course a slot is left open.

The essays will be set into them one at a time, out of order as they are found, then put back into sequence here, so that as the slots fill the record becomes a chronological compilation of the academic writing. For now the frame is empty, and that is the point of it.

ON THIS RECORD

Empty by design

The frame is set to the transcript. The writing fills it as it is deposited, the same way the Biographage fills with its people and the Quarry filled with its years. What is here now is the shape of the study. What comes is the work it made.
